PRINCE TELLS OF OUR DIVORCES. Masters Problem in Three Month Newport Visit.

NEWPORT, R. I., Dec. 24.—Prince Gennaro Caracelolo of Italy, who spent about hree months here last summer, devoted much of his spare time to writing a book which he ctyles "Divorce in Amer-ica." The Prince has sent to friends here the preface of his book, and they said to-day that he dedicates the book to "A Most Charming Lady," whose name is not mentioned.

In part the Prince says in his preface; In part the Prince says in his preface:
I came to this delightful country with no intention of writing upon so delicate and thorny, not to say explosive, a subject, but I will explain the genesis of my book. With us there is an old adage as wide as the civilized world in its application, "Let me know your friends and I can tell what manner of man you are," and with apologies to Marcus Aurelius I beg leave to paraphrase it thus:

Now, happily situated as you are in a prosperous, peaceful country, demanding no alarms or sacrifices from you for patriotism's sake, as is the sad, involuntary Repl left $640,000 to relatives in lot of many of your sisters beyond the sea, what is that unattainable you still seek?

You enjoy illimitable freedom; neither your minds nor your bodies are in slav-ery, as in ancient days, and you walk your country in perfect security of well being. What, then, is the reason for this inner restlessness? What is the explana-tion of so many divorces among you?

I have met many women, divorced not only once but twice and even three-times. When I landed in America such phenomena struck me with the same amazement as the Singer Building; not so much amazement that it could be, but that it was, for, you know, I come from a country where there is no divorce.

What decided me to write on the subject was a pressing a second to the subject was a pursuit of this interestingly human study, the subject herself unconsciously gave me the impetus to sonceive this work.

In conclusion I want to say, frankly, that what I have written is not with the intention of seeking laurels, nor is it merely my aim to criticles a country for which my liking is daily growing more like love; but what I have set down has been done with the earnest desire to help your countrymen and women to be hap-pier, as they might be, and deserve to be.
